

THE INTERIOR JOURNAL.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1872.

YES!

It is a little contrary to our notions of right to give so much for so little, but as it seems to be expected of us in view of the fact that others do it, we will send THE INTERIOR JOURNAL to single subscribers on the receipt of $2 for FORTY-
TEN MONTHS—or from now until January 1st, 1874.—Well, Yes! We will give clubs the same good bargain, i.e. send our paper until January 1st, 1874, to clubs of ten at $1 75 each, with one copy extra. To clubs of twenty at $1 50, one extra copy. The money must always accompany the list. We will pay Agents a liberal percentage, but no picture books.

"Trout can't say I did it!"—O'Leary's Cox.

The Bostonian suffers curse the Mardi Gras.

"How's your horse?" is the pass-word in Louisville.

The Missouri Legislature will be largely Democratic.

There was a snow-fall in Campbell county on the 12th.

The Government lost over one million on the Boston post office alone.

A Post-office has been established at Thomson's station, Clark county.

Chicago in ashes was the first to burn $100,000 to Boston in flames.

The news boys of Louisville sent a donation to the news boys of Boston on last Tuesday.

Gen. Meade, who at one time commanded the Army of the Potomac, died a few days ago.

The wool and leather trade will not be seriously affected by the Boston fire as was anticipated.

When a city like Boston, built of granite, burns up, what city, town or village is fire-proof.

The price of wool in New York has advanced ten per cent, and leather is considerably advanced.

THE FUTURE.

DELEGATION FROM KENTUCKY.

The following is the list of Congressmen from Kentucky:

1st District—Edward Crossland.
2d District—John Young Brown.
3d District—C. W. Miller.
4th District—Wm. B. Reid.
5th District—E. D. Standiford.
6th District—W. E. Arthur.
7th District—Jas. B. Beck.
8th District—M. J. Durham.
9th District—J. M. Adams.
10th District—All Democratic.

ONLY ONE.

The Radicals have only one Congressman from Kentucky this time, and if the Democracy had done their duty in the Tenth District, they would not have had that one. Burns has defeated John D. Young by a very decided majority, and that too in a Democratic district. What is the cause of this defeat? We are told that it was on account of the falling off of vote, and that "Greely did it." Perhaps Mr. Young did not do his duty. Perhaps the Democrats did not do their duty. Don't lay the failure on Mr. Greely. It won't do. He did his duty, and that was all any one could require of him.

KENTUCKY.

Official returns have been received from 83 counties in Kentucky, leaving 32 to be heard from. The vote in the counties now stands: GREELY, 86,684; GRANT, 75,878; O'Conor, 1,907; Greely's majority over Grant and O'Conor, 8,899. The counties yet to hear from are in Southern Kentucky and the mountains. Those in Southern Kentucky will possibly offset Grant's majority in the mountains, and the result will not be materially changed.

EIGHTH DISTRICT.

When we went to press last week, our hearts were rather heavy over what we then believed to be a small majority for Durham. Since then, however, the returns have been received from all the counties, and his majority is a fine one, being, so far as our best information extends, 730. This is glory enough for a "doubtful" district, and proves that the Democracy of the 8th district are not yet ready or willing to sell out to the Radicals.

A Mother Sacrifices Her Own Life to Save a Child From a Terrible Death.

Cincinnati (Ind. Courier.)

Night before last, about six o'clock, the inhabitants of our neighboring city of Henderson, Kentucky, were shocked at the occurrence of a distressing and fatal accident, which happened to a prominent and most estimable lady of that place. While Mrs. W. Lewis, whose husband is a leading boot and shoe merchant of Henderson, was sitting quietly at home, after supper with her little ones gathered around the family fire circle, her little baby by some means managed to run into the contents of a lighted lamp over itself. The clothing of the child immediately caught fire, and the frantic mother seized it, and in her wild excitement, not knowing where to go, rushed down the stairway toward the street. Her piercing screams attracted the attention of Mr. Jos. Merriman, a tender-hearted and gallant Irishman, who was passing the house at the time. He met Mrs. Lewis at the bottom of the stairs; her own clothing had caught from the burning garments of her darling babe, and he quickly seized and by a very strong exertion wrested the child from her arms. Overcome by his superior strength she let go the child and fled into the street screaming in the most heart-rending manner. Some one else about this time ran up and taking hold of Mrs. Lewis threw her to the ground and rolled her over to suppress the flames. Sad to say, however, the dreadful element had done its destructive work, and the unfortunate lady was carried back into the house fatally injured. She lingered in great pain until 1 o'clock yesterday morning, when her spirit took its flight. The child, by her sacrificing love and devotion, was spared, and escaped with but a few slight burns.

The fire first commenced in the rear end of a five story granite building, and spread so rapidly that firemen were driven from the scene by the intense heat of the burning buildings. After the fire gained some headway along Kington and Summer streets, sweeping the immense structures before it, a fierce wind sprung up which increased in a short time to almost a gale, the flames obtained entire mastery of the situation, and the efforts of the firemen were rendered useless and futile. After several hours of blowing up houses was resorted to prevent the progress of the flames, but with very little success. Assistance from neighboring cities arrived and the fire was got fully under control at 4 o'clock Monday morning. It was a terrible fire, but Boston can stand it with more equanimity than almost any other city in America, and will proceed immediately to rebuild the burnt district, avoiding narrow streets and narrow roofs like tinder boxes out of the reach of firemen.

JUST SO!

Reconciliation came to "uncle Pete," an aged darky in this vicinity.—"Well, Peter, you've beaten us badly." Peter: "Now, now, you don't mean to say that Mars Greely's beat?" "Yes, Peter, we've been ignominiously defeated, and fraud and corruption rules another four years." Peter: "Yah! Yah! Yah! Well, I swear, boss, the next time old Mars Greely runs for guineo to try him!"
